

World Peace Tour to Bhutan with Sacred Himalaya Travel

Bhutanese Guide

Tshetem Norbu is a gentle soul who embodies Buddhist ethics, integrity and great good humor.

Since 1995 he has been a professional guide leading tours and treks throughout Bhutan. He brings a deep knowledge of the cultural, religious and natural history of his country. He's also a great birder. He was awarded a National Outdoor Leadership scholarship to the USA and graduated from rigorous training in 2005. He lives with his wife and two children in Thimphu, Bhutan and owns and operates Sacred Himalaya Travel.

Trip Leader

Wendy Erd has traveled over the past several years in Bhutan, and shares a deep love of Bhutanese wisdom and ways.

Long an advocate for citizens as ambassadors for peace, she and her husband were hosts for one of the first Soviet Meet Middle America Peace visits in 1988.

She brings over 25 years experience of traveling and staying in small villages in Asia, a rough and tumble adaptability as a former Alaskan salmon fisherman, and her daily life as an expat in Asia, to help smooth the unexpected. She cultures opportunities for those small moments of humor and grace when travelers can experience the extraordinary connecting with the ordinary lives of others, so like ourselves.

Dagala Summit, Bhutan 2004

She currently lives between Hanoi, Vietnam and Homer, Alaska where she works helping communities tell their stories in print and video documentaries.
